

Published based on Wind turbine critics question panel's report on health impacts - The Boston Globe

Wind turbine critics question panel's report on health impacts - The Boston Globe

Massachusetts residents insistent that the drone and vibration of land-based wind turbines can shatter the health of nearby communities yesterday invoked the onset of the United States' HIV/AIDS epidemic to reject a recent report debunking their claims. an independent report concluded last month that wind turbines present little more than an "annoyance" to residents and ...

Wind turbine critics question panel's report on health impacts - The Boston Globe

You can also find this article published on Wind turbine critics question panel's report on health impacts - The Boston Globe, and on the tag pages annoyance, hiv aids epidemic, nearby communities, vibration.